

A new way for the expatriates to send money to their relatives in Lebanon at a lower cost and without fees for the recipient

Jabalna Magazine - New York

Considering the banking crisis that Lebanon has been suffering from since 2019, it has become natural for money transfers to Lebanon to flourish through fast transfer companies that provide the expatriate with sending money to his relatives, friends, or clients in Lebanon quickly, to receive it in its original currency from any center available on the Lebanese territory, and in a short time.

Usually, the fees for transferring money from the United States (and most countries) to Lebanon are not limited to the sender only but also include charging the recipient with additional costs of 2% on the amount sent to them. This complicated the process for many expatriates and made them pay double the fees to avoid having the recipients in Lebanon pay fees.

No fees for the recipients to pick up!

This obstacle ended today with the launch of the globally trusted Sendwave application, a service to transfer money to Lebanon without incurring any fees on the recipient. For example, if the expatriate sends $500 to his family, they receive $500 in Lebanon when they show their identity card at any Whish Money location on Lebanese territory, knowing that Whish Money has more than five hundred centers in Lebanon.

The benefits of using the Sendwave application are not limited to the removal of fees for the recipient, but also extend to the expatriate who pays only 2.6% on any amount he sends to Lebanon; In addition, if the amount sent exceeds $770, the expatriate does not pay more than $20 in fees on the total amount, meaning that transferring $1,500 will cost the sender only $20, and of course, the recipient in Lebanon is not charged any fees.

Company profile

Since its inception in 2014, Sendwave has been providing additional benefits to facilitate the movement of money transfers from senders to their families and loved ones, which has made it become an industry leader, by reducing fees in countries where traditional transfer companies make the most money. This was the vision of its founder, Drew Durbin, while he headed an NGO based in Tanzania. After about ten years, the company - based in the American city of Boston - has about one million users per month who send remittances from the United States, Canada, and Europe to more than 20 countries worldwide. According to the "Trust Pilot" index, Sendwave today has the trust and satisfaction of users at a rate of 4.6 out of 5.

In contrast to transferring money through traditional companies, with Sendwave, senders do not have to go to the centers of transfer companies with the cash they want to send. Rather, money can be transferred with the click of a button, anywhere and anytime.

It should be noted that Sendwave is a company licensed and authorized to operate as a money transfer agency in the United States, Canada, and Europe, and it adheres to all the conditions and security methods applicable in the global money transfer market.
